1) What is your biggest dream?

Smart people are always rearing to go for the next thing.

This will be a great way to connect with her. You might be surprised to find out that your dreams are similar.

This is one the finest question to ask a girl especially when she is that ambitious type and love her career.

She might also be passionate about something and this question will rekindle or reignite her dream for it.

Also, make sure you ask some follow-up questions.

This is extremely important to keep the conversation running smoothly.

2) If you were to choose between owning a business and traveling around the world, what would it be?

You can know where her heart is set, sharing business ideas or exotic locations you will like to visit.

Many girls would prefer the latter.

But it's good to know opinion on this because it'll show straight out the kind of girl she is.

A party-type or business-type.

3) What's that life skill you think everyone should have?

This might seem simple on the surface but it has deeper extensions.

It will give you a view of her perception of life and survival.

In today's cruel world filled with uncertainty, survival skills are a must and it's very important to get to know hers.

It could also help you get to know one or two survival skills you need to acquire.

4) Do you believe in fate or the power of personal choice?

This question should lead to a robust discussion of the factors that influence humans' lives.

You may not likely agree with each other's beliefs but hearing her out will be interesting.

5) In what order would you rank career, money, health, and love?

You can get to know what is most important to her and what that could mean for a potential relationship or friendship with her.

This is not only a deep question but a personal one. It'll be great to get to know her opinion on this matter because it's really a subjective one.

6) What's your biggest strength?

This shows her level of self-awareness.

You will also get an inkling of how she could be of help to you in your low moments.

I love asking this a lot!

You'll almost always enjoy the answer.

If the girl is someone that likes expressing herself thoroughly, you'll definitely want to grab a coffee and enjoy the time with her.

7) What are the weaknesses that have affected your success?

Her ability to analyze what went wrong with her plans will create a deep and lively conversation.

You could also give her pointers on how to make the best out of her flaws.

So the point here is not only to ask the question but also to listen attentively and try to find out if her weaknesses have affected her in a negative or positive way.

You could also offer advice or practical suggestions on how to overcome her weaknesses and make the best use of her strengths.

8) Science or the arts?

This is a good foundational question to familiarise yourself with her area of expertise.

It will help to have additional questions in each area to carry the discussion forward.

It also important you understand a bit of both subject yourself so it'll be easier to move the conversation to a more deeper level.

9) Are you a stickler for rules?

She might be the type that sticks to the letters of the rules or a rebel that finds a way to do things the way she likes.

You can ask her to give a scenario that describes her type.

This is a very good deep question to ask a girl. Some girls like to follow rules while others don't give a damn.

Be good to know her thoughts on those.

10) Do you have any controversial beliefs?

Nothing stirs up a conversation up more than controversy.

You should be ready to table your opposing convictions without getting agitated.

If you can't handle the answer or you discern the conversation is getting too heated up, please tactfully end it and move on to another interesting deep question.

11) What is the deepest lesson you have learned in life?
