Good Questions To Ask Your Girlfriend

122) What should be the role of a woman in a relationship?

Okay, this is obviously one of those deep questions.

You would get to know what role your girlfriend wants to take up after you two decide to settle down.

There are high chances that there would be a role reversal.

You will also get to match your expectation against hers.

123) What is that one thing that you regret you shouldn't have done in your previous relationships?

Now, this is one very sensitive aspect in a relationship and can either make someone emotional or even angry.

Going down memory lane and recalling something that makes her uncomfortable isn't going to be easy.

So, you need to hold on to your patience and give her ample time to relate everything that she wants to.

124) Which relationship was the most serious one? How did it end? Do you still miss those times?

You need to stop being jealous here if you want to know her from close.

She has got ex-boyfriends, and you might also have your ex's as well.

Even if you don't, you need to hear her out with full patience just for the sake of your knowledge.

Her likes, as well as her dislikes, will come out in the open.

125) Have you ever cheated on anyone in your previous relationship?

This is a landmine, and you need to be extra-cautious on this one.

You can derive a lot of information about what kind of a person your girlfriend has been.

There is a popular saying that 'once a cheat, always a cheat' and there is a reason behind that.

However, it's applied to you as well.

126) Did you give enough time to your ex-boyfriends?

A simple yes or no answer but sometimes it does require some explanation.

This will be a fantastic way to tell if your girlfriend will give you the needed attention you so seek.

127) Have you ever faced any physical abuse in your previous relationships?

This is the real deal!

Some might not admit straightaway but mild persistence will definitely reveal if she had or had not.
